

GAURA LINDHEIMERI 'WHIRLING BUTTERFLIES' WHITE GAURA

Native to Texas and Mexico, this airy herbaceous perennial forms a basal rosette of green foliage from which arching branched flower stalks emerge. Sprays of small white (occasionally pink) orchid-like blooms cover the stems in low deserts during the spring and fall, while summer flowers are common in colder regions. Plant in full sun in cooler areas but provide some afternoon shade in low deserts. It thrives in garden soil, and prefers moderate to ample irrigation.
