

Gaura lindheimeri 'Siskyou Pink' Pink Gaura

This native of Texas and Mexico has an airy and delicate appearance. In the spring it sends up arching sprays of small orchid-like blooms, and continues to flower throughout the summer. Flowers on the species vary from white to pink, 'Siskyou Pink' was discovered by Siskyou Rare Plant Nursery in Oregon. It is a bit unstable, so don't be surprised if your 'Siskyou Pink' occasionally puts out a few white flowers. It thrives in full sun in middle to high deserts, but appreciates some afternoon protection in the hottest zones and prefers moderate to ample irrigation. It is ideal for planting under desert trees. Gaura is in the evening primrose family, and is susceptible to flea beetles.
